

Corrective Care

After a brain injury, the trauma can misalign the atlas (the first vertebrae at the base of the cranium (skull)) and cranial relationship. This can produce an interference with the normal CSF (cerebro-spinal fluid) flow and can reduce the blood flow through the vertebral artery to the brain and can produce spinal cord compression.

The goal of the Atlas Orthogonal Chiropractor is to restore the atlas and the cranial relationship to a normal orthogonal position, which can restore the normal CSF (cerebro-spinal fluid) flow, vertebral artery flow and remove spinal cord compressional syndromes.
